We share your perception that there are enough Kratom sites on the web and that there are enough Kratom products on the market.

But we would want you to trust us that our 15x Kratom product still warrants one more site and one more try.

The booming Kratom market now creates new products and product names almost by the week, but believe it or not: in most cases the differences are just in the wording and in the marketing, but not in the products themselves.

We run our own plantations in Indonesia.

We are and have been experimenting extensively with different Kratom strains already for a decade, and we can assure you that most assertions about certain properties of alleged Kratom strains are in the best case the result of well-developed imagination or wishful thinking, but mostly nothing but pure fantasies rather than pure qualities.

The same applies to the colorful universe of concentrates and essences. No matter how convincing terms like “genetically engineered” or “30x New Guinea” may ring to you, none of these things really does or will ever exist in any likelihood. Thanks God, we should say, because a genuine 30x concentrate would be so intensively smelling that after any use your customers house needed refurbishing.
